

CREDIT ABUSE RESISTANCE EDUCATION

Chicago CARE advances financial literacy education in schools and community organizations

What is CARE?

CARE stands for Credit Abuse Resistance Education. CARE is a national non-profit comprised of professionals in bankruptcy, financial services, and business. We volunteer our time to educate the community about the benefits of personal financial management and the consequences of credit abuse. Borrowing from our professional experiences, we tell true stories about financial distress and the impact it can have on one's life.

What kinds of presentations does CARE give?

Our presentations focus on the smart use of credit, including both credit cards and student loans. We also discuss bankruptcy, credit reports, credit scores, budgeting, and identity theft. Our presentations are generally appropriate for teenagers and adults and range from 30 to 120 minutes. Our presentations are direct, interactive, multimedia, concrete, and relevant. We are successful at resonating with people, in part because the audience detects and appreciates the expertise and passion we have.

Where does CARE give presentations?

Our CARE volunteers are willing to travel to most locations within the Greater Chicago community to give a presentation. Our volunteers are flexible regarding the dates and times we can offer presentations.

How much does CARE charge?

CARE will send volunteers to speak for FREE. All of our volunteers believe in the message of financial literacy and therefore are willing to donate their time to advance the cause.

How do I contact CARE to schedule a presentation?
